SHALL HE BE HUNG?

In Boston Jail lies a colored man, a sailor, named WASHINGTON GOODE, under sentence of death. The day of execution is fixed for the 25th of May next.

Some, well acquainted with the facts of the case, entertain the most serious doubts of his guilt; while constantly, and in his most confidential communications to his counsel and others, he affirms his entire innocence. The verdict rests on circumstantial evidence of the most flimsy character; and the source from which most even of this comes, is suspicious—given by men and women of the worst reputation. No one actually saw the struggle which resulted in the death of Harding. Those who were attracted by his cries to the spot, saw some one stealing from the place; and the main point of the case seemed to be to determine whether this was Goode. We know how utterly unreliable, how extremely open to mistake, is this testimony as to personal identity. The witnesses thought the man was Goode, because his clothes resembled Goode's, though even on this point there is great uncertainty. When it is remembered that the night was pitchy dark, rainy and foggy, and that the most accurate observers are often mistaken as to the identity of persons whom they see in broad daylight, is it not presumptuous to hang a man upon the opinion of such witnesses under circumstances like these?

But more than all this, the determination to execute any man, takes a large proportion of the community by surprise. Within a few years there has been a great change of opinion on this subject; and even those who had not entirely made up their minds as to the question of repealing the statute, were gratified to see that the penalty of death was constantly commuted to imprisonment. So general was the opinion that such would be the course of the Executive, that it is not impossible the expectation may have had some influence even upon the Jury who convicted Goode.

What is there in this instance, to take it out of the rule that has prevailed in all the late cases? If Goode be the murderer, he is stated to have been intoxicated during the evening of the murder. He is friendless, ignorant, and neglected. Whatever may be the reader's opinion as to the general question of capital punishment, this surely is not the man to be selected as a victim or example. Friendless, brought up without education, passing life in the lowest haunts of vice, belonging to a race systematically excluded from most of the influences which soften and elevate man, what has society done for him that she can charge him with any very gross abuse of privileges, of sinning against light? Measured by his education, how has he deserved this dreadful penalty? It is surely safe, is it not also wise, to make one effort to awaken his better nature? Can he not be put to a better use than to be hung? Sad experience shows that the class to which he belongs is beyond the reach of any influence from his fate; and every other class looks upon him either with so much pity or contempt, as to feel little but either indifference or disgust for his execution.

Can it be that a desire to see whether, after the repeated commutations of punishment, the penalty of death CAN be inflicted in Massachusetts—a desire to test the question—has had any weight in dooming this friendless wanderer on the face of society to the gallows? 'There have been several outrages of late; many condemned to death have been allowed to live in prison; it is about time to take one life, and show we CAN; this man has few to care for him—he is a negro,' &c. &c. Such is the reasoning which is too often heard.

Now, our view is, such is just the individual who should be spared. Ignorant, friendless, degraded! what good can spring from such an example? All thinking men will look upon it, viewed in connection with the many who have been spared, as a barbarous and dastardly murder.

A COLORED MAN, too—one whom society most preëminently injures—doomed, with such inevitable certainty, to ignorance and vice, by cruel prejudice and wicked statutes, in almost every part of the country—the child of an abused race. Let it not be said that the last man Massachusetts suffered to be hung was a colored man!

At a meeting of the Massachusetts Society for the Abolition of Capital Punishment, held on Tuesday, 27th ult., the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to take measures for saving, if possible, this poor man from the Gallows, viz:—

DR. WALTER CHANNING, WM. ASPINWALL, Esq., SAMUEL MAY, HON. ROBERT RANTOUL, Jr., ELLIS GRAY LORING, Esq., EDWARD F. HODGES, Esq., FRANCIS JACKSON, DR. H. I. BOWDITCH, REV. JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE, WENDELL PHILLIPS, C. G. DAVIS, Esq., EDWARD HEAD, Esq., CHARLES SPEAR, JOHN W. BROWNE, Esq., JOHN A. ANDREW, Esq., JOHN M. SPEAR, DR. WM. PITT, HENRY JAMES PRENTISS.

A very large and deeply interesting meeting was held at Tremont Temple, on Friday evening, 6th inst., to consider the case of Goode. Eloquent addresses were delivered by AMASA WALKER, Esq., J. A. ANDREW, Esq., WENDELL PHILLIPS, REV. A. A. MINER, REV. JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE, and REV. WILLIAM H. CHANNING. A committee of gentlemen and ladies was nominated to circulate petitions in Boston and its vicinity. To the subscribers has been left the duty of circulating petitions throughout the State. We urge, most earnestly, every friend of humanity to coöperate efficiently with us, in securing signatures to this petition. Let us save the old Commonwealth from the infamy of thus sending to the Gallows the poor outcast who lies trembling in her grasp. Give us a few hours, a day, to cheer the solitary dungeon of one who has none to look to for sympathy or aid but you. If he must die, let not the responsibility of his death rest on us. But public sentiment is too far advanced to allow his execution, if it be but faithfully appealed to. Do what we can, and he shall not die, but live—perhaps to serve his fellow-men, certainly to be better fitted to meet his end. In the name of our common humanity we call on you for aid.

If our friends throughout the Commonwealth will coöperate speedily and efficiently with us, and allow the voices of their towns to be frankly heard, we may hope to save the life of the unfortunate prisoner.

As the expense of our meetings, printing, postage, &c. rests upon the Committee, if any one is willing to aid them in this respect, money may be forwarded to FRANCIS JACKSON or J. M. SPEAR.

Do not rest satisfied with merely filling the opposite page, but paste on blank sheets.

In behalf of the Committee,

JOHN M. SPEAR,
WENDELL PHILLIPS.

✍ Petitions may be sent to J. M. SPEAR, 2½ Central Court. They should be returned as early as the 20th instant.
